Draperies for Summer Sheer and Thin—Light in Both Weight and Color—Chinese landscape is Decidedly Novel Pattern—Oriental Net Very Appropriate Fabric—Scrim Masquerades as Marquisette—Dining Table That Will Not Discolor Ambition of Every Housewife—Directions for Making That Possible.

DRAPERIES FOR SUMMER ARE SHEER AND THIN.
Curtains too thin to shut out the breeze, too filmy to catch the summer dust, too transparent to oppose a single sunbeam—these are the draperies of summer. Materials light in weight and light in color are a relief from the rich draperies appropriate to winter, when the cold weather makes it pleasant to look upon dark-toned fabrics; for deep colors give a sense of warmth, appear to close in the room with an air of intimate comfort.

The Standard IDEAL ART EMBROIDERY PATTERNS

A touch of embroidery (in any garment) adds a refinement that can be obtained in no other way. A few stitches here and there outlining a distinctive though simple design and you turn a dollar shirtwaist into one that would cost five at almost any store. The girl who has taken the pains to learn the fascinating art of hand embroidery makes the plain garment distinctive and in a few minutes a day for a little while can provide herself with the most attractive outfit of lingerie to be had anywhere. She becomes the envy of the girls who don't know how, and who can only have these pretty things by paying the exorbitant prices which they cost in the shops.

Every girl in the city should take advantage of the opportunity provided by this paper at this time to secure an embroidery outfit and learn this fascinating art. The Ideal Art Embroidery Outfit contains 166 newest and most select designs, transferable by simply rubbing the back of the patterns with the finger, thumb nail, or other smooth object—a new process just discovered—the most practical embroidery hoop and a Book of Lessons in Stitching, by Mrs. DuParque, the noted French expert, which gives one instructions for using in different attitudes. Every woman who is a reader of this paper is entitled to one of these outfits. All we want to know is that you are a reader of this paper. In some part of the paper daily we publish a Free Embroidery Coupon (easily recognizable). Look for it daily.

To identify you as a reader, you have only to bring with you or send to us, the coupon, and the small expense sum that is named in the coupon. This expense sum represents the actual expense we are put to in getting the girl into your hands.

These patterns transfer so easily, without the slightest danger to the fabric, that it is a pleasure to use them. No hot iron or dampening or carbon paper is necessary. Call at this office and examine this wonderful pattern outfit.

angles seem floating in a mist of softened light. Nottingham, although among the cheapest of laces, appears this spring in designs of charming daintiness, in both square and round mesh. Stripes, also, are shown, and give character to the sheer fabrics. In the fillet net of this season the squares have been altered to oblongs, which brings a novelty in effect and design without changing the general character. This fillet net is a very practical material, for it can be cut on any line between the squares and will not ravel if left without them or finish of any kind. Many inexpensive laces are also to be had which are bordered on either side with a narrow edge so that they are practically ready to hang.

A pattern which is decidedly novel is the Chinese landscape. For some time this design has been familiar in chintz and brocade, and now the makers of lace are reproducing the eccentric tree, the picturesque pagoda, the languid ladies, and the mated doves. Those who seek novelties will find certain materials which are both new and interesting in these quaint Chinese designs which suggest the patterns of old willowware.

Oriental net is a very appropriate summer fabric as its sheerness and delicacy are scarcely surpassed in any other material. Plain hobnail is one of the smartest materials. Where the necessity for screening a room from the outside world requires that the curtains cover the window, it is appropriate for either lace curtains or sash curtains, and may be finished all around with one of the narrow braids sold for the purpose. A plain hem draws in the laundering; therefore the braid is desirable.

Scrim in its finest varieties masquerades as something newer, under the name of marquisette, and is very satisfactory because of its plain surface and durability. It is shown now with pretty borders that obviate the necessity for stripes, which are usually of a satin weave, with various patterns between them, or with a design of color, of a design carried out in the rough weave called madras. In some cases the border is woven of silk, which gives a satin effect especially pretty in contrast to the delicate creamy marquisette. Scrim is also woven in a variety of allover squares and stripes, all imitating various patterns of drawnwork.

THE HAND-POLISHED TABLE.
A dining room table that will not discolor even when hot dishes are rested on it, is the ambition of every housewife, especially if she is fortunate enough to possess a genuine mahogany table. It is distressing to a degree to find its surface covered with the white rings seen on nearly every sort of a dining table, except perhaps those that are hand-polished as tables used to be.

With the following directions, persevered in to the end, it will be quite possible to obtain a handsome table top that will not only not show white marks, but that will even be uninjured if the alcohol of the percolator lamp runs over the table, or in any other of the accidents that occasionally happen to mar the temper of the careful housekeeper. But it is necessary, before this can be done, to have an immense amount of patience and perseverance, for the process of seasoning the table so that it will be practically stain-proof will take several months.

First of all every trace of varnish must be removed. Get from any paint shop a good varnish remover and apply it generously until every particle of varnish has been taken off. The table will perhaps seem to have lost all its beauty, but this will be restored in the end. Mahogany stain, crude oil and gasoline are also necessary in carrying out the work.

When the table has been cleared of every bit of varnish give it a generous application of mahogany stain. It will appear very dark and of a brown color; but do not worry, for it works up lighter, and becomes a wonderful rich color, showing the grain of the wood. Get a pint of crude oil and gasoline mixed. This quantity will last for some time. Be sure to keep this in a place safe from fire. Once a week the table top should be rubbed with this mixture, rubbed until the oil is absorbed. A flannel cloth will do, or better still, a brick covered with velvet or a piece of carpet.

For some time now, your patience will be sorely tried, for you must faithfully continue the rubbing for six months, and further a stain will appear on the dollies and tablecloth wherever they have become wet. It is easily removed in washing. Once a week the table top should be rubbed with this mixture, rubbed until the oil is absorbed. A flannel cloth will do, or better still, a brick covered with velvet or a piece of carpet.

If the table is soiled, you may wash it as you would the kitchen table. The time has come now to begin the application of wax. Any of the English brands of floor wax will prove satisfactory. Before you begin, however, with wax, you must scrub the table, wax, literally scrub it, using a scrubbing brush, some good cleaner and water, which is not hot.

The oil, in the meantime, has filled every crevice of the wood, and has actually saturated it. It is now quite ready for the surface finish. The wax is then applied and rubbed into the grain of the wood. You must not think this wonderful surface is obtained with an occasional rub. No, only by faithfully adhering to the rule—wax once a week and rub thoroughly, or rather, whenever you have nothing else to do.

The process described is an inexpensive way to obtain a satisfactory, comforting and beautiful piece of furniture.

MINISTER DISCOURSES

ON MEMORY OF CIVIL WAR
Salt Lake, May 25.—In the perspective of the years we are better able to judge the real significance and estimate the great value of those dark years of '61-'65 than were the people in the years directly following them," said the Rev. L. S. Bowerman, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist church, yesterday morning. Dr. Bowerman chose his text from Joshua 4:6, "What mean ye by these stones?" and his discourse was on the general subject of the memory of those who fought in the great struggle of the civil war.

"We appreciate today a fact that we did not fully comprehend then; namely, that the war was God's punishment for the nation's sin. But the result has been worth the struggle and the country today is unified as it never would have been otherwise," he said.

Dr. Bowerman paid a magnificent tribute to the great leader of the days of trial, Abraham Lincoln, referring to him as the greatest character since the days of Paul. "God as surely called Lincoln from his rude hut and rail splitting, as ever he called David from caring for his father's sheep to be king of Israel," said the speaker.

"After the war the days seemed to be dark," continued Dr. Bowerman, and the nights were weary. Trouble and dissension were still rife in the land, though the conflict had ceased, and the people could not understand that the Lord still watched over the world. But as the years passed on and events drew away where they might be seen in their proper order and in the right light it became apparent that all had been for the best and that those times are indeed worthy of memorial stones and polished shafts, that those scenes deserve a place on the walls of our homes, that all was for the right, and that God was wondrously good."

DOOR OPEN TO ALL.

Provo, May 24.—In his sermon to the graduates of Proctor academy this evening, Dr. Philip King took for his text the passage from Revelations: "Behold, I have set before thee an open door and no man can shut it." Mr. King spoke eloquently and encouragingly of the door of opportunity which was open for all—not necessarily the door the individual might desire to enter, nor at the time he might wish to enter, but some door leading to a life of service, usefulness and honor. The graduates were urged to enter, and to not be discouraged, but press forward through life with the assurance that no man can close the door against them—that they themselves alone can close it through unfaithfulness to duty and to the responsibility of service for humanity.

LINCOLN'S LIFE AN INSPIRATION SAYS SENATOR SMOOT

Washington, May 24.—Senator Smoot today in the rotunda of the capitol before the Lincoln circle No. 2, Ladies of the G. A. R., delivered a stirring oration on "Lincoln, the Man." Every year this society holds a memorial meeting at the capitol in honor of Lincoln. Senator Smoot said in part:

"The position that Lincoln attained was due to his own qualities and was gained by his own efforts. Many of the world's great men began their careers with a goal in view. Not so with Lincoln. The long, toilsome climb from the backwoods cabin of Kentucky to the White House, the highest civic position to my mind in the world, marks a trail not of bloodshed and strife, but of kind deeds, worthy motives, hard work and high ideals."

"Lincoln did not climb to a power in any petty manner, nor by accident. There is something akin to inspiration in his life, and who will say he was not inspired? When the great Master came to earth to be among his people he sought among the lowly for his followers and selected humble fishermen to be the heads of His kingdom, and likewise, when the thread of fate hung in the balance and internal strife and turmoil threatened to disrupt our nation, it is no wild thought to think that God himself guided and directed the steps of the uncouth frontiersman, and gave him strength of mind and will, until the rattlesnapper, the flatboat hand, conquered all and reached the summit, with a spirit calm and unswerving."

ARRANGE ANNUAL CAMPFIRE.

NEW MAIL CONTRACTS.

Provo, May 24.—Postoffice Inspector F. M. Hamilton and O. M. Hood have returned from a trip east over the Denver & Rio Grande and have received bids from contractors to lay the mails from the Capitol into the reservation country from Thompson, south and from Dragon to Vernal. These bids are based on weight of mail carried, and not a lump sum, regardless of weight, as has been the case in the past. The old system caused a great deal of trouble since the parcel post was added to the mail service on account of the great increase in mail and no increase in compensation.

APPRECIATE VETERANS.

Provo, May 24.—Memorial services were held in the tabernacle this afternoon. President Joseph B. Keeler presided. The speakers were Superintendent L. E. Eggersten and Professor A. N. Merrill, who spoke appreciatively of the work of the veterans of the civil war. The Indian war veterans and the pioneers. He encouraged the younger generation to emulation in such duties as life shall bring to them. Appropriate vocal selections were rendered by members of the tabernacle choir, under the direction of Professor J. R. Boshard.

HOME-COMING WEEK AT AMERICAN FORK BLDG EVENT

American Fork, Utah, May 24.—Following a call by Mayor E. S. Greenwood, a mass meeting of the citizens was held at the city hall last night for the purpose of considering the holding of a "Home-coming" festival here this summer. There was a large representation of citizens present and much enthusiasm was shown. By a unanimous vote of those present, it was decided to hold a three days' celebration here the first week in July, beginning July and closing with a big carnival on the Fourth of July. Invitations will be sent to all persons possible who ever lived in American Fork. Not only those who have made American Fork their home will be invited, but everybody in the state will be invited to be present. A committee of five was appointed, consisting of Bishop Joseph Storrs, Bernard Christenson, L. W. Galford, Lou Nielson and Joe Dunkley, to make a thorough canvass of the business men and other prominent citizens of the place and urge them to be present at a meeting which will be held next Tuesday night, when further arrangements will be made and more committees appointed to look after details of the celebration.

BARN AND BUGGY DESTROYED.

Provo, Utah, May 24.—Fire destroyed a small barn, the property of George Taylor, jr., this forenoon. A buggy, belonging to Frank Hoover, was also burned. The total loss is about $300. A number of buildings in the neighborhood caught fire from the sparks, but these fires were put out by the fire department before any damage was done. The fire in the barn is supposed to have been started by boys with matches.

Another fire which caused great excitement started this afternoon in a pile of poles belonging to the Utah Power & Light company, piled on the vacant lot east of the Ford garage. The fire also caught in the roof of the garage, and all the cars were hurriedly rolled into the street. Only slight damage was done. It is supposed the fire was caused from a match being dropped in shavings made by trimming the poles.
